

Creature Card #9

Ladybug or Lady Beetle

- Bugs have needle-like mouthparts and a mostly liquid diet, while beetles have the ability to chew and enjoy munching on plants and insects.
- Beetles go through a complete metamorphosis, while bugs look about the same throughout their entire life cycle.

- Ladybugs flock together to reproduce right before entering hibernation.
- Ladybugs are helpful for pest management. Females can eat 75 aphids in one day; they also like to eat scale, mealybugs and spider mites.
