

NatureTrack Nancy Stearns Scholarship

The NatureTrack Nancy Stearns Scholarship is for a graduating student (2024) from a North Santa Barbara County High School with a 3.0 GPA or higher, enrolling in a four-year accredited college in natural sciences. The applicant must submit an essay of 500 or fewer words related to goals within a natural science field (see definition below). In your essay explain your educational and career intentions as they relate to nature. In addition to the completed application and essay, the student must submit a full high school transcript.

Priority will be given to a student with a financial need to pursue higher education. Support awarded for each of up to four years based on acceptable performance and continuation towards a bachelor's degree.

Scholarship Amount: $5,000; $2,000 awarded year one; $1,000 awarded year two, three, and four based on acceptable performance. Award paid directly to the student's school tuition account.

Natural Science includes any study of nature. Suggested desirable majors to support (not inclusive): biological sciences (botany, aquatic biology, wildlife, ecology, entomology, horticulture, animal science, plant science, etc.), earth sciences (geology, oceanography, geography, remote sensing, cartography), wildlife sciences, outdoor education and environmental sciences. Does not include agriculture, health or medicine.

The goal of this scholarship is to support students who will find a career in support of nature: conserving, preserving, researching or sharing nature with others. If there is another major that will prepare you for that goal, please apply and explain your educational path to that goal.

If you intend to study any topic related to the natural world, consider applying for this scholarship.
